Garbage collection rates to increase under new contract

Residential garbage collection rates in Seaside will be going to $3 per month after July 1.

The city council, after gnashing its teeth for several weeks over the problem of refuse collection, decided last week to renew the garbage collection contract with the Martelli Co. for a five-year period.

That means that eventually rates to customers living in single-family dwellings will increase by 13 per cent, from $2.65 to $3 monthly, and rates for multiple-family dwellings from $2.55 monthly to $3, an increase of 17 per cent.

There will also be an increase in commercial and containerized collection rates of 26 per cent, explained Councilman Joe Cota, the council member on the refuse committee.

"We have confirmed that the contractor, through his profit and loss statements, is in need of a raise in rates for at least $58,000 to break even in Seaside," Cota said.

One of the reasons the rate increase is needed is because Seaside's revenue from residential areas is 70 per cent of the total for refuse collection, and 30 per cent comes from the commercial area, Cota said. In Monterey, the opposite is true: 65 per cent of income is from commercial areas and 30 per cent from residential.

"In Monterey, the commercial area is partially subsidizing the residential area," Cota said. Also, in Seaside, there is a perennial problem with non-payment of collection fees, especially in apartments.

Even with the projected increase in rates, the garbage contractor will still be about $10,000 short of what he requires to stay in business, Cota said, adding that the remainder will probably come from additional commercial area business.

Cota said the refuse committee recommended the following measures as a way out of the garbage mess:

--Mandatory pickup in the residential areas of the city.

--An exclusive franchise to Martelli, with permission to pick up all additional refuse generated in the city.

--A five-year extension of the contract between the city and Martelli.

--An increase in the franchise rate to the city to 10 per cent from the current 4 per cent.

"I propose we begin looking into a refuse collection system within our city," said Councilman Steve Ross. "We need to build into our planning a process to deal with the possibility that Martelli may decide to eliminate Seaside service."

Council approves tower; overturns city planners

The city council overturned the planning commission last week and decided to allow Ocean View Cablevision build a 120-foot microwave antenna at 2100 Fremont Blvd.

But the council included as part of the use permit the original nine conditions stipulated by the planners, as well as two more of its own. Ocean View Cablevision will not decide whether to build the tower under those restrictions.

Vice President Ray Waters told the council at its regular meeting last Thursday that Ocean View Cablevision not only was appealing the planning commission denial of the use permit, but the conditions it would have attached to the permit, had it been approved.

Waters said the $600,000 receiving tower is essential to upgrading and expanding service on the Monterey Peninsula, and said that location is ideal because it is in the middle of the microwave beam.

Planning Director William Burris told the council that the location of the proposed site of the tower is 84 feet above sea level, and "the elevation is such that you could see it from Canyon Del Rey and Fremont." The basis for the planning commission's denial of the use permit was primarily esthetic, but there were other questions raised about safety and necessity.

The proposed location for the tower is one lot of five which Ocean View Cablevisions owns at that address, and the use permit granted allows both construction of the tower, as well as a portable building to house electronic gear and a fence.

Waters told the council Ocean View Cablevision was not pleased with one of the conditions proposed by the planning commission that would require a master plan for full development of the five parcels and a related requirement for a time schedule for phasing of the plan.

"The microwave signal path is very crucial to where the tower might be located," Waters said. "The signal at the microwave facility will not permit an additional split. This site is the only commercially-zoned property in Seaside where we can use a tower of only 120 feet high. Other sites would require towers 60 to 80 feet higher."

In response to questions from council members, Waters said the tower could not be located outside the city, on the periphery of Fort Ord, for example, because that would place it outside the microwave beam. The television signals in a microwave beam are transmitted in a straight line, from point to point.

Mayor B.J. Dolan asked how the installation of the tower would benefit the people of Seaside, and Waters said it would result in improved television service and the opportunity to originate local programming in Seaside, as well as increasing employment by 10 or 12 positions.

Waters told the council that Ocean View Cablevision would agree to a condition that, if it was found that police communication would be enhanced by use of the tower, the tower would be made available to the city for that purpose.

Paul Davis, architect for Ocean View, said the plans for the tower and accompanying building would retain 20 per cent of the site in landscaping, and said the lower 50 feet of the tower would be masked from view.

Burris said the conditions attached to the original use permit were indicative of the planning commission's concern that "the city just spent $600,000 to beautify Fremont Boulevard--that's how important it is to the city."

The use permit was granted, with Councilman Joe Cota casting the only negative vote, subject to the following conditions:

--Ocean View Cablevision must prepare a total site development plan to become the master plan for the site.

--A time schedule for implementation of the master plan shall be arrived at, and off-site improvements such as curb, gutter and sidewalks shall be installed before final inspection of the tower.

--A certificate of survey must be submitted before the building permit.

--Compliance with all requirements of the building permit.

--Compliance with all requirements of the building, fire, and health department codes must exist, and the site shall be maintained in a weed-free, litter-free manner.

--The total site must be graded, drained, and surfaced in accord with zoning requirements and those of the city engineer.

--All public utilities must be undergrounded.

--The permit is issued only in the name of Ocean View Cablevision, and is non-transferrable: it will become null and void unless implemented within one year.

--The permit may be revoked by the city at any time for violation of any of the terms or conditions of the use permit.

--The permit will have no force or effect until agreed to in writing.

--Equipment for public service communications, such as police radios, may be placed on the tower by the city of Seaside.

--The basic time schedule for implementation of the master site plan must be brought back to the city council for approval, and, if the time frame is extended, a landscaping schedule will be included.

Lions Club assists blind students

The Seaside Lions Club presented semi-annual awards last week to two deserving students of Monterey Peninsula College.

Recipients were Miss Nancy Neal of Monterey, who received a $200 check and Richard A. O'Neill Seaside, who received a $50 check. Both are visually handicapped students. Miss Neal is totally blind and O'Neill is partially blind.

Nancy was a student in an out-of-state college in Mississippi when it was discovered she had a brain tumor. She was subsequently operated on and lost her vision during the operation. She came to the Peninsula and entered MPC where she is pursuing a course in speech therapy.

In her letter of appreciation to the Lions, Nancy stated:

"I wish to extend my sincere gratitude for my being chosen to receive $200 this year. I plan to purchase a braille watch and a portable typewriter with the funds that I received. The above items are very important to me and they will help a great deal in my studies at MPC," she said.

Richard is taking courses in BioMedical Instrumentation and will use the funds to purchase books, and supplies.

The Seaside Lions have a history of working with the visually handicapped. Last year they held a picnic for more than 50 blind people at Toro Park. The organization is more than 30 years old, and is totally committed to aiding the less fortunate of the Monterey Peninsula.

Teacher gives a lesson in citizenship

A retired school teacher gave the city council a lesson in good citizenship last week.

Speaking at the regular meeting of the council last Thursday, Mrs. Grace Hennington of Seaside said she was distressed by recent evidence of bickering and conflict among city council members.

Mrs. Hennington referred to recent accounts in The Post of squabbles between Mayor B.J. Dolan and Councilman Oscar Lawson, particulary.

This is what she said:

"I have lived in Seaside longer than any of you sitting here on the council, having lived here since 1951. My husband and I helped circulate petitions for the incorporation of Seaside. We have seen Seaside, who has always been considered the step-child of the Peninsula, become a community of which we can be proud.

"We are meeting in a city hall that is more beautiful than any on the Peninsula. We are seeing our library nearing completion. We have seen shacks and substandard houses replaced by lovely homes which are a credit to any city. For all of these we are thankful. but most of all we are thankful for the citizens of Seaside who have worked together, a mixture of races though we might be, to create a good place for our children and grandchildren.

"But one thing is sadly lacking in this, and that is a harmonious relationship among the members of our city council. Or perhaps I should narrow it to between two members of the council. When we read in our local paper und hear on the radio news of the bickering and squabbling which took place at the last council meeting we are saddened and embarrassed.

"Why can't our personal differences be settled in private? Why must so much energy be dissipated in recriminations and fault finding, rather than on constructive communication and reasoning? Seaside has had far too much of this kind of conduct by previous councils which ended in recall elections. Gentlemen, don't force that upon the electorate of this city again.

"Our young people are looking to you for mature leadership. Are you giving this? Are you setting a good example or are you leaving them filled with consternation and mistrust. At a time when all are more or less critical and suspicious of government at all levels are your actions increasing or diminishing this attitude of our young people?

"It has been said that one of the marks of maturity is the ability to control anger and settle differences without violence and destruction. It is being big enough to say, "I was wrong", and when right, the mature person need not experience the satisfaction of saying, "I told you so.'

"Unless there is a maturing of some of the people seated before me the city of Seaside stands to see all of her efforts to continue to grow and improve, destroyed."

Fremont's open house dinner

Something extra will be available to those who attend Fremont Junior High School's Open House April 23.

The annual Open House, to be held as part of Public Schools Week, will be preceded by a spaghetti dinner at 6 p.m. at the school, 1060 Kimball Ave.

The menu will also include tossed salad, rolls and cake. Sponsored by the school's PTA, the dinner is open to the public at $1.75 for adults and $1 for children up to 18.

Two units of 7th Infantry to be activated

Two battalion sized units of the building 7th Infantry Division will be activated on the Brigade Parade Field at 10 a.m. April 21.

Both of the battalions have been filing with new troops and have been operating as provisional units.

The Second Battalion of the 17th Infantry is commanded by Lt. Col. Robert B. Williams. The Second Battalion of the 8th Artillery is commanded by Lt. Col. Robert M. Furney. Both of the new units boast proud heritages.

The 17th Infantry fought through the Civil War and was credited with stopping the Confederate forces at Gettysburg's Little Round Top. After taking part in three Indian Wars, the 17th fought in the war with Spain and throughout the Philippine Insurrection and, still later, in the Mexican War. During World War the unit was used mostly to guard German prisoners.

After reactivating in 1940 at Fort Ord, the 17th won three arrowheads and four battle streamers during action in the Pacific Theater during World War II. This was followed by a gallant showing in the Korean War where they took part in 10 campaigns. Soldiers of the 17th Infantry were part of a task force that reached the Manchurian Border where they first met the Chinese when they stormed over the Yalu River into Korea.

The 8th Artillery was activated into the Regular Army at Fort Bliss, Tex. in 1916. Although they saw overseas service, they were too late to do any actual combat firing in World War II. This was quickly changed as the unit's big guns roared during three campaigns in the Pacific. They received streamers for fighting in the Central Pacific, Guadacanal and Luzon. During the Korean War the 8th Artillery served in 10 campaigns with great distinction.

Visitors planning to attend the activation ceremonies April 21 may enter Fort Ord at the main gate. Proceed straight ahead to North-South Road, make a right turn to the light at Gigling and then go left up Gigling past the hospital to 7th Avenue. Turn left here and proceed to eight Butler or B Street and again make a left turn at the Parade Grounds.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEEK

Public Schools Week will be observed by a spaghetti dinner and an open house for interested community members at Fremont Junior High School at 6 p.m. on April 23. Tickets for the dinner are available that evening at the school. Adults $1.75 and $1 for students.

Let's not forget the coastal plan

(EDITORIAL)

After more than two years of work, the Coastal Zone Conservation Commission has completed the preliminary draft of the coastal use plan drawn up in accord with the provisions of Prop. 20.

That initiative measure, approved by an almost two-to-one margin by California voters in 1972, attracted national attention, for it represents the first time legislation has been enacted that seeks to direct coastal land use for the 1,000 miles of California coastline.

In many ways, Prop. 20 was landmark legislation, and the importance of the coastal commission's task was nothing less than monumental: to draft legislation and planning strategies that would preserve for the people of California the state's unique and beautiful coast.

But the more cynical among political observers, whether ardent environmentalists or laissez faire capitalists, would have to conclude that today, almost three years after the passage of Prop. 20, some of the fire has died down.

With the economy staggering anemically along and paranoia settling deeper into the national consciousness, many of the fine and unusual precepts underlying Prop. 20 and the charge to the coastal commission seem in jeopardy.

"How can we afford not to develop the coastline?" might become the rallying point for short-sighted opportunists who would gladly toss all the work of the coastal commission out of the window. If that viewpoint ever prevails, it will be a genuine tragedy for all of California, not just the coastal areas.

Residents of the Monterey Peninsula and Monterey County will have a chance to state their views on the preliminary draft of the coastal commission's plan at a public hearing scheduled for 7 p.m. May 6 at Sunset Center in Carmel.

The hearing will be conducted jointly by the Central Coast Regional Coastal Zone Conservation Commission, and the state-level commission. The hearings will be conducted at the regional level throughout the state before the plan is presented to the legislature for action in December.

That hearing is when those who live in this area, and who are truly concerned about the fate of our coast, should let the coastal commission representatives know that their concern is as great as ever for the proper regulation and preservation of the coast.

As in other political matters, apathy is the anodyne that threatens to dull the razor's edge of environmental consciousness.

Recycling revenues begin to add up

A record high of more than $11,000 was paid to recyclers in March for used aluminum cans through Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp.'s Can-DO recycling program at six locations in Monterey, Santa Cruz, and San Benito counties, Can-DO Manager Gerri Rose announced this week.

"Total March collections for these three counties were 73,960 pounds," Ms. Rose said. "At 15 cents per pound, that's a lot of money for what some people merely toss away as garbage."

The six Can-DO centers involved at Joseph George Distributors in Salinas and Santa Cruz; Joseph Rossi Distributors, Salinas; Sparoline Distributing, Seaside; The Neely Company, Hollister; and Mondo Brothers, Santa Cruz.

Can-DO buys used aluminum through 59 recycling centers in northern California, Washington, Idaho, and Montana. Last year, a record $1.3 million was disbursed to the public through the Can-DO program.

Volunteers are the muscle of Marina parade fest

"Everybody loves a parade." True. But did you ever stop to think what makes a parade tick? What makes all the component parts that makes the passing of the colors, the inspirational music and the precision marching such a stirring sight?

It all boils down to one word: Volunteers!

Without volunteers, there would be no parade in Marina.

This year's 7th Marina Annual Spring Parade and Celebration, set for Sunday, April 27, has been totally organized by volunteers, just like the six previous parades and just like the future parades will be.

What is a volunteer? Who is a volunteer?

First, a volunteer is a local resident, interested in the growth and promotion of his or her community. That's right, there's no male chauvinsim here. The girls get jobs equal to the men. All they have to do is raise their hands and say "I'll do it."

Second, a volunteer must be willing to give freely of his (or her) time and energies, with little or no recognition for their work.

Some people volunteer for specific committees, some simply say: "Here I am, tell me what you want done."

And speaking of committees, there are committees, and then there are committees.

First you have to have a board of directors to lend authority to the proceeding and to provide the decision-making machinery. Then there's the VII Committee, awards and judges, funds (parades do cost money, believe it or not), and on and on seemingly ad infinitum.

There's the bazaar, there's publicity, the reviewing stand to be set up, the handing of traffic and safety, communications and cleaning up after the parade.

The list seems endless, yet each job has someone to handle it. Sometimes one volunteer handles more than one job, often out of necessity.

Then, just when the situation seems totally chaotic, out of chaos comes order, and everything falls in place like the pieces of a puzzle. This comes about because of great organization and administration.

So, it all comes down to the final day. Fingers are crossed hoping that the unpredictable Monterey weather breaks good.

Lists are gone over for the 1,000th time hoping nothing has been overlooked.

Then comes that last anxious look at the sky, the final look at the watch. At 1 p.m. that hopefully beautiful Sunday, the first marchers step forth to the beat of a drum, and the parade is on.

Suicide agency needs volunteers

The Monterey County Suicide Prevention Center is seeking volunteers to enlarge their staff or telephone counselors.

Applicants accepted by an interview committee or registered through Monterey Peninsula College will meet for instruction each Monday and Thursday evening beginning Monday, April 28 and terminating June 5. Upon completion of the training course, volunteers for the service will be prepared to offer realistic help to individuals in crisis.

A 24-hour telephone service is maintained to receive calls from the despondent and troubled and to suggest appropriate alternatives to suicide. This includes referral to social welfare, relitious and medical specialists, as circumstances indicate. Such volunteers are asked to give a minimum of four hours a week.

Applicants may obtain details by calling 373-0713 or 373-6363.

The classes are also open to recommended representatives from community agencies and churches.

Why do Christian concepts endure?

The qualities expressed by Jesus have influenced men through the ages. Though frequently trampled upon, these gentle attributes emerge unharmed.

What is their remarkable strength?

When you're met with another's forgiveness, meekness, and unselfed love, why is it that your own bitterness fades?

There is a book which explores the penetrating effect on men's lives of these simple expressions of good. It speaks of the timeless spiritual laws which underlie these Christian qualities.

The book is Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

VD investigator never knows what response will be

A lot of people would get the wrong impression if they were told that Jane Fox is an undercover veneral disease investigator.

Nevertheless, that's exactley what she is. No, she doesn't leap from behind corners, apprehend her suspects, and drag them, kicking and screaming, into some sort of health or judicial tribunal.

She merely informs those who have VD, or who might have contracted it from a known carrier, what their treatment options are, and urges them to get speedy remediation. Jane Fox's official title is "public health adviser" to the Monterey County Health Department.

Working in the Salinas Branch of the county health department, Jane Fox is actually employed by the U.S. Public Health Service and is one of seven persons working in the epidemiology division of the health department on the burgeoning VD problem.

By latest statistics, the rate of veneral disease in Monterey County is twice that of the national average. Miss Fox says that may be because of better detection and reporting of VD, as well as because of an actual rate that is higher because of the county's migratory population.

The Presence of Fort Ord on the Monterey Peninsula and the large numbers of migratory farm workers in the Salinas Valley probably account for some of the high VD rate, she said. Whatever the case, the county health department, under director Dr. Robert Bowersox, has made VD control a top priority public health goal.

Jane Fox is one of those who works diligently to implement that goal. She's "undercover" only in the sense that all her contacts with clients are strictly confidential, and because she doesn't want her identity broadcast, for the simple reason that it might be a detriment when approaching people to inform them they might have VD. For those reasons, she declined to have a photograph taken to accompany this interview with The Post.

"There's still a lot of stigma attached to VD." she observed, adding that the interest of the county health department is strictly based on public health, and does not involve any moral issues or judgments.

Even though counseling is not a part of her job, nevertheless, she gets involved with it on a limited scale, since many of the clients she interviews desperately need someone to talk with.

Patients come into either the Salinas or Monterey County Health clinics on their own, or through a referral from a private physician, and they are screened for VD. If they have gonorrhea, which is now the more prevalent veneral disease here, they are asked to inform their sexual contacts that they might have the disease and to advise them to get treatment.

Miss Fox said this motivational, educational approach seems to work much better than an enforcement approach, where the interviewer asks for names and addresses from the client.

"They generally contact them faster than we could," she observed.

The motivational approach has been tested for about a year in the Salinas branch of the county health department, and may soon be used in the Monterey branch because of its proven effectiveness.

Sometimes, however, clients do not have clear information on who their contacts were. They may know on a first name basis only, or may know the color of their house but not its street address. That's when Miss Fox has to locate the contacts and tell they they might have picked up VD.

"If we can't reach people by phone, then we go to their homes," she said. "I've even gone into a bar looking for people. Sometimes we have to go to a house just by a verbal description of it, or follow a map someone's drawn. We also ask for a physical description, so we need to be conpletely confidential."

The majority of people Miss Fox contacts are grateful, if somewhat disbelieving at first, to know they might have VD. But there have been those who react unpredictably.

"I've had people threaten to sue me," she noted. "Some people don't believe you, and some see your coming as a form of harrassment. But, if it takes seven phone calls and two house calls, we'll do it!

"Sometimes, we say to the person that we have this information and if it fits them, they should go in for an examination. One of the most interesting aspects of the job is not knowing exactly what response you'll get."

Miss Fox said she feels the public schools in Monterey County should be credited with making the job of the VD investigator easier by giving young people a realistic view of the nature and dangers of the disease.

Although the emphasis at present is upon control of gonorrhea, the statistics show that it is still on the increase in this county. Syphilis, a more devastating form of veneral disease, is staying at a fairly constant level. But the control and treatment of gonorrhea is becoming increasing difficult because of the fact that 80 per cent of the females who contract and carry the disease show no early identifiable symptoms.

And the number of males who show no such early warning symptoms has increased at the same time by about 15 per cent.

"With syphilis, we do it differently," Miss Fox said. "It can take three months for the first stages to show up. So we try to become aware of all contacts for the last three to 12 months. We explain the disease and let them know what's happening with their bodies, and the consequences if the disease is left untreated. Then we try to get the names of the contacts; we try to reach them the fastest way possible.

"We tell them they've been exposed to someone with a serious communicable disease and ask them to come in. Then, when they come in, we spell it out for them. The typical response is: 'Who was it?' We talk to them for a few minutes to make sure they'll go to our clinic or to a private physician."

Despite the best efforts of the county health department and the seven VD investigators, "it never seems we can catch up" with the spread of gonorrhea, Miss Fox said.

Some of the reasons she names for its increase are, of course, the change in sexual morality in the last decade, as well as the use of birth controls pills, which have given women the feeling of more sexual freedom. Miss Fox said women on birth control pills have experienced an almost a 100 per cent increase in their chances of picking up VD than those who don't use them.

Miss Fox believes that being female in her job has proven to be an asset more often than a detriment. The male VD investigators are often mistaken for bill collecters or other harbingers of ill; her reception has more often been cordial, she said.

"Many times, I've been able to get into places where the men had trouble," she said. "A lot of men are at first hesitant to talk to me, but they loosen up later. It takes a lot of effort and concentration to see whether a person is telling you everything, or why they might be holding something back.

"We have to convey to them the sense that we're only interested in this from a treatment standpoint. And we have to convey a sense that we can be trusted."

Treatment of gonorrhea, if detected in the early stages, can usually be accomplished by a single massive dose of pencillin administered either orally or by injection. Treatment of syphilis is usually a matter of a few weeks of the same kind of drug. The county health department offers free, confidential, walk-in diagnosis and treatment of VD at hours which can be determined by telephone contact.

Miss Fox said proudly that the U.S. Public Health Service has found that whether one if male or female is not a factor in job performance in the public health field, and, in the case of venereal disease workers, women can often deal better with homosexuals than can men.

Cyclethon '75 scheduled for May 11

Participants in Cyclethon '75, a special event scheduled for May 11 in Pacific Grove, will be potential winners in several ways.

Betty Nixon, Cyclethon Chairman of the Central Mission Trails Heart Association, said prizes contributed by local merchants will go to participants who raise exceptional amounts for the heart program as a result of the bike riding event.

"In addition, every cyclist who takes part will have the satisfaction of being part of a project to support local programs against heart disease," Mrs. Nixon said. She added that the exercise of the Cyclethon ride itself will also benefit the individual in his personal exercise program to reduce the risk of heart attack.

In other communities throughout California, similar rides will also be scheduled to support the Heart Association programs and services. Local prizes will include first prize of a 10-speed bike, plus many other prizes which have been donated by local merchants.

Mrs. Nixon emphasized that the objective of the cyclethon event is to raise money for the support of local programs of heart research, education and community services, and to remind the public of the health benefits of bicycling.

Registration forms and information about "Cyclethon '75" can be obtained at local bike shops, schools and the Central Mission Trails Heart Association, 600 South Main St. Salinas.

International evening

International Evening at Marina Vista School April 22 will feature short programs about six different ethnic groups and is a finale to the International Days held throughout the school year as part of the multicultural studies.

Marina Vista has a 40 per cent non-white ethnic balance. The purpose of the special days of recognition was to help the students and staff recognize other cultural heritages and contributions to American life, and to learn to appreciate, understand and respect those persons from other cultures.

Students will be costumed for the performance to be held on April 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the multiuse room. Parents and other community members are cordially invited to attend.

Chairpersons for the International Days are Mrs. Drunell Rowe and Leon Turner. Others assisting include teachers, former students who attended Marina Vista, and many parents.

Easter fashion credits overlooked

The N.A.A.C.P. held its annual Easter Fashion Show and Tea March 30. It was a huge success, but in last week's issue, credit was not evenly distributed.

A young, striving, ambitious man by the name of Doug Gilmer has coordinated a non-profit organization called "Four Seasons Fashion Productions" and through the gracious help of N.A.A.C.P., the Four Seasons Fashion, which consists of some 10 models, fashioned beautiful spring apparel provided by Kim's Fashions in the Del Monte Shopping Center.

To give the performance a finishing touch, music was provided by Kaisa's Music 'N' Things.

Dog licenses now available

The Monterey County Health Department is responsible for issuing dog licences to residents who live outside the city limits in the unincorporated county areas, having taken over this function from the county clerk in 1974.

Monterey County dog licenses can now be obtained in Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Rd., 373-0111 or Marina at the Animal Shelter (end of Beach Road), 384-8771 or by mail at P.O. Box 2137, Salinas, 93901. As a convenience to owners, licenses will also be issued at the Reduced Fee Rabies Vaccination Clinics beginning April 28 on the Monterey Peninsula.

To obtain a license, the owner must present a current rabies vaccination certificate dated December 1973 or thereafter. The county license fee is $10 for 1975-76 and is reduced to half price ($5) if the dog has been spayed or neutered. All city and couny dog licenses expire April 30, and must be renewed before May 31 to avoid a penalty.

Persons residing in the various peninsula cities must obtain the license from their respective city clerk at city hall or at the ravies clinic held in their city of residence. Dog license fees in the cities of Carmel, Seaside, Monterey, Sand City are the same as the county fee. The exceptions are: Del Rey Oaks ($3) and Pacific Grove ($3 reduced to half-price $1.50 if the dog has been spayed or neutered.) Phone 373-0111 for county license information.

College credit offered for TV course

A new television course produced by the California State Department of Health will be available to Peninsula residents for college credit through registration with Monterey Peninsula College. The course will be screened Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on KQED Channel 9 beginning Tuesday, April 29, and is titled "New Directions in Community Care I."

An introductory meeting for those desiring credit will be at 4 p.m. Thursday, April 24 at the Driftwood Convalescent Hospital, 1575 Skyline Drive.

Ann Stewart, MPC administrative intern, said "New Directions in Community Care I" is designed primarily for people working in residential care homes but should bring into mutual communication all those in the community with an interest in first-rate care for the mentally or developmentally disabled.

Relatives, social workers, and the patients themselves will benefit from viewing these programs, Ms. Stewart said.

MPC will offer two units of credit for this course. Students may register and pay a $5.25 materials fee at the introductory meeting.

'Twelfth Night' to be presented

The final performances of the Monterey Peninsula College Players production of William Shakespeare's riotous comedy "Twelfth Night" will be held Friday and Saturday, April 25-26 in MPC's SRO Theatre with curtain time at 8:30 p.m.

"Twelfth Night" deals with the twins, Viola and Sebastian, separated at a young age, who confuse the members of the city of Illyria. While Viola searches for her brother, Sebastian is mistaken for his sister. Meanwhile, all the gentlemen are vying for the hand of the Countess Olivia, who has fallen in love with Viola, thinking she is Sebastian.

Richard Seymour, Monterey Peninsula Herald Drama critic wrote "merriment, the kind of merriment that will delicately and delectably sneak right under your skin as you watch and listen to these players, is what this 'Twelfth Night' is all about."

Tickets are $1.50 general and $1 for students and military. For reservations contact the MPC Theatre Box Office at 375-0455.

"Bank of America helped my husband set up his own business. Now they help with all our banking."

Dora M. Banks

Dora Banks, Venice, California

When it comes to banking, Dora Banks and her husband are like a lot of Californians.

They were looking for a bank to serve a variety of needs. And they chose Bank of America.

They made a good choice, too. Because Bank of America offers almost every kind of banking service there is. From checking and savings accounts to special trust accounts, safe deposit boxes, BankAmericard,® and a full range of business banking services.

But that's not all you get at Bank of America. You also get the safety of having all your accounts insured up to $40,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

And you get convenience, too. In fact, with more than a thousand offices in California to serve you, Bank of America is maybe the most convenient bank you'll ever find.

Put all that together, and you can see why more Californians depend on Bank of America than on any other bank.

It's true. Just ask Dora.

Depend on us. More Californians do.

Bad habits kill good people.

Too many pills. Too many drugs. Too many drinks. When they don't kill, they maim. The nervous system. The body chemistry. The emotions. And the mind.

The only way to make things better is to start getting sensible about ourselves. If you're taking prescription drugs, follow the prescription. If you're having trouble, see your doctor. If you drink, do it in moderation. And remember, even over-the-counter drugs can be addictive.

Many local health departments have treatment programs. And if you write to the address shown below, we'll send you a free directory of other helping agencies.

You see, bad habits kill good people. And we'd rather you weren't among them.

NEWS OF HIGHWAY SAFETY

By Alem L. LaBar
President, National Association of Insurance Agents

HIGHWAY FIGURES BAD—HOPE SEEN FOR FUTURE

A 28 year old managed to compile a driving record in 10 years which included convictions for hit and run, reckless driving; driving while license was suspended, speeding, jumping traffic signs, and several other violations. He was also involved in seven accidents.

A 40 year old from the same state put together a record in 19 years of driving including four convictions for driving while intoxicated, six for reckless driving and 11 for driving after license suspension or revocation. He had two accidents involving bodily injury.

LaBar

These two drivers are no longer on the roads. Virginia saw to that under provisions of its Habitual Offender Law.

However, these are only two, representing a group of heedless or arrogant drivers who may number as many as five million across the United States.

Last year, Americans established records for deaths, injuries, accidents and economic loss by the way they drove.

Origins of our age to be examined

The concepts and forces developed at the beginning of the 20th Century will be studied in Monterey Peninsula College's next Gentrain course, "Twentieth Century Part I," which begins at 10 a.m. Tuesday, April 29 in MPC's Lecture Forum 102.

Classes will be held each Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. with a one-hour lunch break. Gentrain courses are open to students for college credit and to community members on a non-credit basis for those who are interested in learning about their world, said Robert Nelson, Gentrain director. No tests or papers are required under this option.

The years to be studied in part one of "Twentieth Century" are from 1914-1945. "Following the period of synthesis between 1890-1914, exciting and tremendously important developments emerged as the result of that period and from World War I," Nelson said.

"Because the war broke down social barriers, the work was never the same again. These breakdowns and the Great Depression, reflected in the arts, literature, drama, philosophy and politics of the time, will be considered in the unit," Nelson said.

For more information on this Gentrain Unit and registration, call the Gentrain Information Center at 649-1150, ext. 338.

ANIMAL HEALTH HINTS
BY DR. MIKE ADAMS
HOFFMANN-LA ROCHE INC., NUTLEY, N.J.

MAINTAINING THE FEED

Hog raisers justifiably concerned with the amount of vitamin H (biotin) their animals get from corn may with good cause exclaim "shucks!" For laboratory analyses have shown that vitamin H values of corn range from 50 to as low as 20 micrograms per pound.

Why should this be a matter of concern?

Because biotin is necessary for the incorporation of protein into body tissue and the metabolism of carbohydrates for the efficient utilization of energy. It is necessary for the production of body fats and is essential for the development of the skin.

Furthermore, it is necessary for the development of the nervous system and for normal reproduction. Deficiency symptoms were observed more than 20 years ago, but they were not recognized at a commercial swine operation until 1966.

For a free copy of a new booklet about vitamin H, write to Dr. Mike Adams, Roche Chemical Division, Hoffmann-La Roche, Inc., Nutley, New Jersey 07110.

Easy Livin'

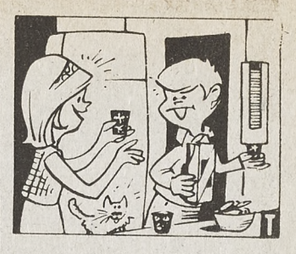
PACK THE SNACKS

A time-honored ritual, the after-school snack, perks up youngsters after a long day at school and helps them bridge the gap until dinner.

With a bit of pre-planning, you can supervise not only what your children eat but how they go about it — and encourage independence among your brood.

To prevent children from using and perhaps breaking glassware, or dirtying a sinkful of dishes before dinner, make a rule to use only paper cups. Another rule: clean up afterward — easy enough with tossaway paperware!

A Dixie cup wall dispenser hung at just the right height for kids will make getting milk or juice easy.

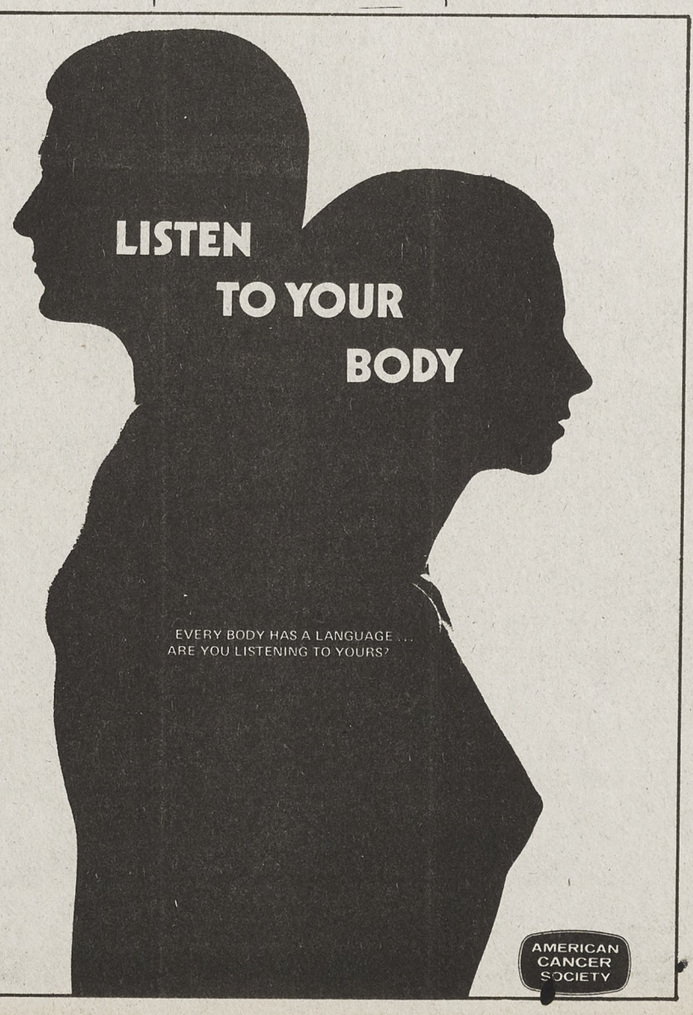


To avoid monotony, vary the after-school menu. Leave paper cups filled with fruit, either fresh or canned. Vegetable lovers will appreciate carrot and celery sticks.

For the child with a sweet tooth, fill a cup with a mixture of raisins and nuts, or crunchy, fortified cereal, such as granola — both so much better and more nutritious than candy.

If your child prefers heartier fare, don't forget the perennial sandwich favorite, peanut butter and jelly.

So, with these snack ideas, though you can't always be there when the school bus arrives, it will be possible to meet your children's after-school nutritional needs.



Summer session registration starts

Mail registration for the Monterey Peninsula College's summer session begins Monday, April 28, and runs through May 15.

Summer classes start June 16 for both the six- and eight-week sessions.

Class schedules listing summer course offerings are available at the college's student services building.

Persons interested in signing up for summer classes should do so early in the registration period, thus making it more likely that desired classes will be open.

Although students are invited to register by mail, they may also being their registration forms directly to the registration desk at the student services building between April 28 and May 16.

On-campus registration is scheduled on June 11, 12 and 13. Registration hours are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and between 6:30- and 9 p.m. on the 11th and 12th and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on June 13.

A late registration period is scheduled on June 16 and 17 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. or between 6:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

No registration fees are charged for California residents, although students must pay a $2.50 building loan fee. Non-resident students must pay a tuition of $28 per unit and some classes carry special materials fees.

Veterans with advance payment requests for the summer session have until April 28 to file their requests at the MPC veterans affairs office.

Requests received by that date can be processed in time for the opening of summer school.

Veterans registering for summer classes must see a counselor in the veterans affairs office to review applications and supporting documents.

Traffic forgiveness offered

THe Municipal and Justice Courts of Monterey County are announcing a special forgiveness program during the month of May for persons having outstanding traffic warrants.

The forgiveness program is just for minor violations. It does not include drunk driving, reckless driving and other more serious acts.

Citizens can clear up old traffic tickets without paying the accompanying penalties if an arrest warrant was issued. They can avoid having the arrest warrant served on them. Persons who have their California driving privilege temporarily suspended because they failed to appear on a traffic citation can have their driving license cleared by paying only the original amount of bail without the added penalty.

The courts and law enforcement agencies throughout Monterey County can be relieved of the high volume of traffic warrants outstanding.

The court mailed a letter to each persons of record having an outstanding traffic citation, telling them about the program and asking them to come into court or contact the court to clear their record before the end of May.

Students selected for honors

Forty-four Monterey Peninsula College Students have been selected by the college's Student Personnel Advisory Committee for inclusion in the 1974-75 ediction of "Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges."

Selection of the students was determined by an analysis of a list recommended by MPC staff members. The list of recommended students was studied by the SPAC who determined the final list of 44 students.

The select group are all second year students, and the grounds for listing in the national publication were based on leadership in the community or on campus. The students were not specifically selected on scholastic ability, but most are excellent students as well.

The MPC students to be listed in the publication include Ronni Sweet of Carmel Valley; William Apger, Stephanie Cunningham, Michael Glover, Steve Hare, Linda Hudder and Lance Monosoff, all of Carmel;

Julis Ambrosio, Matt Arnett, Don Baker, Louis DuBose, Eric Hartzell, Cynthia Hooten, Teri Kier, Cynthia Larkin, Harvey Malone, and Nancy Servies, all from Pacific Grove;

Richard Barraza, Jeffery Burkhardt, Richard Cota Jr., Gary Craft, Timothy Eckles, Patrick Hall, Paul Keene, Stephanie Lucky, Gerald Markle, Nu Stephen, Martin Omoto, Bryan Quattlebaum, Delores Richo, and Frank Sherman, all of Monterey.

Chris Pappageorgas of Pebble Beach; Geneva Banks, James Brown Jr., Emil Magallanes, Barbara McClair, Garnett Noble, Sylvester Smith, Arthur Tagle and Jerry Williams all from Seaside and William Days, Michael Gardner, Mary Lalicata and Janet Snyder, of Marina.

Political science professor to speak

James Dator, professor of political science at the University of Hawaii, will speak in Monterey Peninsula College's forum series "In Touch with Tomorrows" at 8 p.m. Friday, April 25 in MPC's Lecture Forum 103.

"In Touch with Tomorrows" is a 'futures' forum which includes four noted futurists who will speak on such topics as living spaces, energy alternatives, cities, life styles, communication, education, international interactions and the sciences. Dator's topic is "An Anticipation of the Near Futures."

Dator is working with the Ontario Educational Communications Authority to assist the Canadian Government. In Hawaii he is a consultant for the Governors Commission to the year 2000.

Admission for the lecture is $1. For further information, contact MPC Community Services at 373-5522.
